

SEC'Y DICKINSON LAUDS PRESIDENT TAFT AT THE TENNESSEE STATE FAIR

Says That Nation's Chief Understands That Deep-Seated Race Question Cannot Be Ignored.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 23.—Following at length and in complimentary terms to President Taft, Secretary of War Dickinson, in addressing the Tennessee state fair today, discussed the political situation throughout the south.
"President Taft," said Mr. Dickinson, "has gone further than any republican president to meet the wishes of the south in establishing a policy looking to the promotion of peace within her borders. In this he has not responded to any demand either of his party or the people of the North. A leader of thought, knowing the conditions, he patriotically and courageously does what he believes is best, trusting to results for his vindication. The great hold he has upon the confidence of the country at least holds judgment in abeyance. If it does not at once gain entire approval, this vindication will depend mainly upon the wisdom, self-control and conservatism manifested by the Southern people. It would be a calamity if his efforts should be nullified and his good will alienated. If a man of his character, position and patriotism, full, then it will be long before another will follow in his footsteps."
"The judicial work of the president," he declared, "extending over Kentucky and Tennessee, gave him intimate knowledge of their conditions and those that affect other Southern states in common with Tennessee. But it should not be forgotten that while he was sympathetic with the South, he was a republican and a northern man. For that reason, it should not be expected that he would accept in its entirety the southern view. He had appreciated the extent of the irritation that had come from appointing negroes to office in the south."
"He understands," the speaker added, "that this is a broad, deep-seated race question that cannot be ignored nor argued out of existence, and that for the peace of both races it is the part of wisdom that such appointments should not be made, and he has publicly declared this to be his policy and has carried it out. He holds with his distinguished predecessor, who declared in his famous speech made in New York before the Loyal Legion, that the purity of the races must be maintained. While he is thus mitigating the difficulties of our situation, we should do our part to sustain him and make this burden of his office as easy to bear as the exigencies of the conditions will admit."
"If the white people assert the right to govern, then the government should be one of fairness and justice, a government of law, and not of passion. The courts, and not mobs, should punish lawbreakers. Negroes should be protected in their property rights, dealt with justly, and governed by the constituted authorities."
"Those who established the commonwealth of Tennessee, such men as James Robertson, John Sevier and Andrew Jackson, would have spurned with indignation the very suggestion that in time of peace they did not have the virtue and manhood enough to enforce the law through the courts. The centering virus of mob rule, a matter against what evils directed, destroys all wholesome life in the body politic, and makes it a polluted wreck, swayed by passion and incapable of the ordinary administration of law."
"The judicial work of the president," he declared, "extending over Kentucky and Tennessee, gave him intimate knowledge of their conditions and those that affect other Southern states in common with Tennessee. But it should not be forgotten that while he was sympathetic with the South, he was a republican and a northern man. For that reason, it should not be expected that he would accept in its entirety the southern view. He had appreciated

INSPECTOR EDWARD MCCANN CONVICTED BY THE JURY

Chicago Officer Charged With Accepting Bribes From Dive-Keepers, Found Guilty This Morning.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, Sept. 23.—Police Inspector Edward McCann, charged with grafting, was found guilty by the jury which reported in Judge Barnes' court this morning after deliberations lasting nearly 20 hours. At midnight there was supposed to have been a deadlock, with nine members of the panel holding out for acquittal and only three demanding conviction.
The indictment of Inspector McCann came as a climax to State Attorney Wayman's investigation of alleged police graft in Chicago. Ten true bills covering a general charge of acceptance of bribes from dive-keepers were voted July 23, and four days later two additional indictments charging similar offenses, were returned.
McCann had been especially favored by the city administration, having been raised to the rank of inspector by former Chief of Police Shippy within a few months after the election of Mayor DuSane. As a captain in charge of the Twenty-second street police station he had acquired some reputation in his work of segregating vice in the South Side "red light" district. Immediately on his promotion he was placed in charge of the Desplains street district, which embraces the West Side levee.
While there he had the cooperation of various reform organizations and clergymen in warfare on the "white slave" traffic. Meanwhile, however, various reports concerning police supervision of the West Side had reached the office of State Attorney Wayman.
Detectives from Mr. Wayman's office as well as operatives employed by a private investigating agency were detailed to gather evidence in the Desplains street district. Then came the explosion when the officers swooped down on 100 or more dive-keepers and inmates of West Side resorts. Two days later the grand jury returned indictments against most of those taken in the raids, the officers being charged with violating the law in maintaining disorderly houses.
Among those caught in the meshes of the grand jury were Julius and Louis Frank, proprietors of a saloon at Hubert and West Madison streets. After their indictment Mr. Wayman called for Louis Frank. The saloon-keeper was questioned and cross-examined until finally he broke down and told a story of alleged police corruption, accusing McCann and Detective Jeremiah Griffin.
According to Frank's statements, corroborated by his brother, Julius, and later sworn to by them on the witness stand, he had acted as the official "collector" for Inspector McCann since the police official went to the Desplains street station. The money extorted from resort proprietors for police protection he declared was paid to him regularly at his saloon and turned over each month to McCann at the Desplains street police station. Frank swore on the witness stand that the rates were fixed according to a schedule of $20 a month for places where there was but one floor and $30 a month for two floors. Ordinarily, he said, the dive-keepers paid a "flat rate" of $20 a month, irrespective of the size of their place, but McCann called him to the station two months after their "understanding" had been reached and ordered the raise.
During the first two months Frank and his brother declared Detective Griffin acted as the "go-between" for them and McCann, but this arrangement was changed at the inspector's request after an anonymous pamphlet attacking McCann had been circulated throughout the district.

He thinks that this control is bound to come, and that it is necessary because it is a recognition of the income tax principle.

EARTH NEAREST TO PLANET MARS TODAY

Autumnal Equinox Today Begins Winter Half-Year—Mars Only 35 Million Miles Away.
Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—This is a most interesting date for stargazers and others interested in astronomical science. It is not only the day of the Autumnal equinox, when the sun crosses the celestial equator going south, and the winter half-year begins, but it is also the date of the opposition of Mars, when that planet is at its minimum distance from the earth, 55,000,000 kilometers.
Some scientists have suggested that it might be a good time for Mother Earth to try the experiment of signaling to her nearest neighbor. Aside from all other considerations, the success of such experiment is manifestly impossible at this time, for when the two worlds are nearest together the earth is invisible from Mars. This is because of the fact that at the time of the opposition the sun and the two planets are in line. Thus, when the earth passes between the sun and Mars, the bright hemisphere of Mars, being naturally turned toward the sun, the other one, turned towards Mars, is plunged in darkness and is consequently invisible. It would, therefore, be in vain for the Martians to try to discover something on the earth at this time. Even if great electric lights should be placed on every square yard of the whole terrestrial hemisphere, turned toward Mars, they would, nevertheless, be unable to discern the illumination, for they would be looking in the direction of the dazzling sun.

GUNNISON TUNNEL OPENED BY TAFT

PRESIDENT TOUCHES BUTTON THAT RELEASES WATERS OF RIVER.

MANY ACRES RECLAIMED

For Agricultural Uses and Homes and Light For Fifty Thousand People Will Be Furnished.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Montrose, Colo., Sept. 23.—The first great project undertaken by the Federal Reclamation Service in its efforts to reclaim the semiarid lands of the West became an accomplished fact today, when President Taft, in the presence of a large crowd of railroad magnates, financiers, Federal and State officials and other interested spectators, touched a button which opened the great flood gates and turned the waters of the swirling Gunnison river into the Uncompaghe Valley. In a brief address the President expressed his pleasure at being present at an event which meant so much to the future of the country and particularly to the Western states, where vast areas of fertile lands but await the magic work of the irrigator to blossom as the rose.

IRIGATES 150,000 ACRES.

The completion of the Gunnison project means the reclamation of nearly 150,000 fertile acres, making their cultivation certain and successful. Homes for at least 50,000 people will be created. The Uncompaghe Valley, in the heart of the main ridge of the Rockies, where now thousands of acres of mesa lie bare and brown, will within a few years be covered with orchards and truck farms. The great tunnel, which is the main feature of the project, will not only aid in the work of irrigation, but will be used also to generate electric power sufficient to light every town and every farmhouse in the valley and to provide power for all kinds of commercial and industrial purposes. Already there are a number of flourishing towns, Montrose, Delta and Olathe, located in the valley.

TUNNEL SIX MILES LONG.

The main tunnel is six miles long and extends through a mountain of almost solid rock. Through this great tube the waters from the Gunnison River, which flows through a granite bound canyon, the walls of which are 2,500 feet high in many places, are carried into the valley. The tunnel is the largest underground waterway in the world. Its capacity is 1,300 cubic feet of water a second. It is cement lined throughout and it costs more than $2,500,000. With the main distributing canals the total cost of the project amounted to over $3,000,000. The main canal is 30 feet wide at the bottom, 33 feet wide at the top and the average depth of water is 10 feet. Four and a half years were necessary to complete the great engineering work.

Many Difficulties Overcome.

The preliminary work on the undertaking was difficult and spectacular, for the Gunnison River flows at the bottom of a great canyon with almost perpendicular walls and the surveys for the location of the tunnel heading required both horsemanship and engineering skill. Actual work on the tunnel was preceded by the construction of a road down the canyon walls over which supplies and heavy machinery could be carried. For four years crews of men were employed in boring into the granite mountain from both ends of the tunnel. On July 5 last the two gangs met at a point 10,812 feet from the intake on the Gunnison River. In the progress of their work they had encountered all sorts of discouragements, gas, cinders, hot and cold water, running sand and treacherous material which required careful timbering in order to protect the workmen.

Tunnel Taps the River.

Instead of the customary dam at the point where the river is turned into the tunnel, the tunnel itself taps the river from beneath its granite bed. By this plan neither floods nor silt can prevent the water from taking all the water needed from the river. All the flumes, culverts, diversion gates, drops and other works along the line of the main canals are built of steel and concrete, of weight to last for centuries. Wherever there is danger of sliding lands, the canals are heavily lined with concrete. The whole building the tunnel, the Reclamation Service has acquired all the important canals and irrigating systems in the valley. There are to be reconstructed into one comprehensive and complete system.

Will Grow Various Crops.

Of the 150,000 acres included in the project, nearly 100,000 acres is land which has long belonged to private parties. The lands are suitable for fruit growing and the raising of all kinds of farm crops. While the project cost the Government $3,000,000 to build this vast amount ultimately will be repaid by the residents and settlers in the valley at the rate of $35 per acre for the water rights. Settlers will be given ten years by the Government in which to pay for these rights.

WILLIAM WATT HAS AN INTERVIEW WITH NESTOR OF MINERS

Tells in Letter From Reno, Nev., the Story of "Shorty" Harris and Discovery of the Bullfrog District.

Editor Gazette: Frequently seen in this part of the country is one Frank ("Shorty") Harris who is the man who started the rush into what is now known as the Bullfrog mining district. Like many other sections of the old Sacramento state of Nevada, the territory along the California-Nevada border in southern Nye county remained practically uninhabited by the white man until after it had received the magic touch of the prospector's pick. Now and then some emigrant outfit, touching a watering place here and there at intervals of forty or fifty miles, had passed over the dim trail that crossed the wide stretches of desert, and occasionally some prospector with a pack train of burros had ventured into the hills, only to pass on to more inviting fields of conquest after seeing nothing that gave him the heart to tarry long.

Like many other portions of the desert, the country along the placid Amargosa had been visited by a few, and with a fleeting glance at the barren, treeless hills, had been "passed up" and left alone in its solitude and isolation.

It remained for "Shorty" Harris to start something in this uninviting section, and proud is he of the story that his discovery precipitated. When "Shorty," August 5, 1901, struck a boulder of quartz with his pick and brought to light the virgin gold which was literally sprinkled through the green stained rock, he little dreamed that within two years' time there should be a railway within a stone's throw of the spot, or that there would be mills and towns and thousands of people within the immediate vicinity of what was one of the most isolated places on earth.

"Shorty" remembers now that there was scarcely a white man within fifty miles of the spot, except, perhaps, an occasional prospector passing to and fro across the sands. He also remembers that "Old Man" Beatty, recently deceased, was the only white resident then within what is now the Bullfrog district, with only one other white family between Mammoth and Thorpe—Wells—a distance of one hundred miles.

"Old Man" Beatty, on a little ranch just east of what is now the town of Beatty, lived in true frontier style, surrounded by his squaw wife and a family of halfbreeds; harboring the wayfarer who sometimes disturbed his monotonous existence; and getting as much out of life as could be expected from the surroundings. George Davis with his family lived on another little ranch farther up the river and one George Lynch was now and then "at home" upon another small patch of grass and trees in the immediate vicinity. These settlements comprised the civilization in what is now the Bullfrog district at the time when Harris struck the lucky blow on the Bullfrog claim.

"I failed to get in early enough in the Tonopah and Goldfield rush," said "Shorty" in telling of his experiences. "So I wandered south and followed the Keon Wonder excitement in the Funeral range. I got there about as late as I did elsewhere, so I failed to get any close-in ground. Long before the Keon Wonder was struck I traveled across the country from Grapevine to Buck Springs, and had seen the big blowout of quartz on the very ground that I later located as Bullfrog claim. When I found that I could not get anything good at Keon Wonder, I remembered the blowout and decided to go back to it. E. L. Cross was at the Keon Wonder; he was there, about, "Shorty" would like to get with you," said Cross.

"Your chance is good," said I; "come along."

"We packed the four burros and struck out, together with some other prospectors who had joined in the Keon Wonder rush. Some of the boys went to Thorpe and some to Tokop, but when we came to Daylight Springs I told Cross that I knew of a country that I wanted to take him to; that I had passed it up some time before, though it looked good to me, and we would go back to it. He was willing, and we came on to Buck Springs, which is only a little east of the objective point.

"Not morning we started west. Cross started down to the little hill to the south, which Beatty located as Mammoth, and I went over to the blowout. I found lots of quartz all over the hill and started to break it with my pick. Cross had not moved over two hundred feet away from me when I called him back. I had run against a boulder, and I called out: 'Come back; I have certainly struck it.'

"The quartz was just full of free gold, and it was the real stuff. Talk about rich rock. We took the stuff back to the Springs, and panned it and we certainly went straight up in the air. The very first boulder was as rich in gold as anything I have ever seen.

"No, we did not locate the claim until the following day. We were safe as there was not another live one in the country, except 'Old Man' Beatty. Everybody else had left and gone north; so we did not place our monument until the next day, and then we located only one claim, together with a mill site and water right.

"I went over to the ranch and showed the rich rock to 'Old Man' Beatty, and he immediately hot footed it over and located the Mammoth claim. George Davis next heard the good news and located the claim to the east. Meanwhile Cross and I went to Goldfield and told a few of the good fellows whom we knew, and right then the rush was on. Did they come? No, I guess not; inside of three days eight hundred men were on the ground. Several men were sold out of their claims inside of a week for as high as $50,000 cash. That camp for six months was the warmest speculative spot in the world."

"And just let me tell you," said Shorty, brushing back his slouch hat and getting himself into a familiar pose, "the Bullfrog district is going to be the banner camp of Nevada after all. I have said so from the beginning and still say so. I am no tenderfoot at the prospecting business. I have been at it since 1878, and have followed the excitements from the time I packed my blankets in Leadville down through Butte, British Columbia, Utah and other points. The Bullfrog is a crackerjack, I say. If they will put money into the ground there like they did in Virginia City there will be all kinds of good paying mines. There are too many holes there now that remind me of a prairie dog town. If they will prospect in Bullfrog like they do in Goldfield where men are willing to sink thousands of dollars before raising a color, then there will be something doing.

"No, I have never made a big stake," said "Shorty." "The biggest haul that I ever made was $10,000. I let the great Bullfrog strike get away from me just because I had too much 'O, be joyful' on board and there was no use of me trying to recover the property after once I had disposed of it while under the influence of liquor. But don't worry. The short man will never again sign anything when his body is overflowing with booze."

"Shorty" Harris is short for his size, about 50 years of age and unmarried. He has blue eyes, golden hair and is a confirmed bachelor who says that he will be much disappointed if he does not die "with his boots on."

Old Treasury Official Dead.

William MacLennan, for 40 years chief of the division of bookkeeping and warrants in the treasury department, died recently after an operation for cancer. In May, 1903, he was sent by the treasury department to Honolulu to settle and pay off the public debt of Hawaii, assumed by the United States at the time of annexation. He again went to Hawaii in 1903 to liquidate claims for fire losses sustained in combating the bubonic plague in Honolulu in 1899 and 1900, the United States having undertaken the payment of such claims amounting to $1,000,000.

Clair's Engagements.

In a recent discussion of illiteracy William H. Maxwell, the extremely successful superintendent of New York's public schools, quoted an amusing letter.

This letter, sent to one of Superintendent Maxwell's Brooklyn teachers, ran: "Friend teacher, I do not desire for Claire shall engage in Grammar, as I prefer her engaging in yuseful studies, as I can learn her how to speak and write correctly myself. I have went through two grammars and they done no good. I prefer her engaging in French and drawing and vocal music on the planna."

CHILDREN'S EYESIGHT

Children must go to school. They must study and learn. When the eyes are strong the child bears easily the strain of close work and finds school life a happy time.

When the eyes are weak, when the print blurs or runs together, when the little head aches, the child turns rather to trumpery, than to books. Have your children's eyes carefully examined by

Getting a Scoop.

I had no thought of calling on the President when I went to Berlin," said the drummer. "Indeed, I had forgotten he was there until a startling incident happened. I saw about 100 men around with notebooks and pencils, but I took them to be advance agents of airplanes. The next day after my arrival I was riding out in a buggy, when I noticed a cloud of dust whirling toward me along the highway. I made out that it was an auto coming at a double clip, and I halted to the side of the road to let it pass. It whizzed by like a streak of lightning, but I got sight of the 'no of a man and recognized it in two two hours later."

"You might have run me down on the road this morning," I said to him. "You were going at an awful clip."

"Yes?"

"Were you trying to make a record?"

"Oh, no."

"Going for the doctor in a case of life and death?"

"Something more important than that," another earthquake in California?"

"No. I had learned on the best authority that President Taft had succeeded in reducing his weight seven ounces since yesterday morning, and I was in a hurry to telegraph it to my journal as a scoop."

"And you beat all the rest of the boys?" I asked.

"Clean out of their boots, sir, and I am now looking for a raft of safety every minute!"

OUT OF THE ORDINARY

A Chautauque program which does not include the names of half a dozen reformers, is a novelty, for these people have been the mainstay of the people's forum in the rural districts and furnish the opportunity to exploit all sorts of grievances.

The Illinois Chautauque located at Lincoln, after being snuffed with Bryan, La Follette and other apostles of reform, had the temerity to invite Walter L. Ross, vice-president of the Chicago and Alton railroad. Whether the organization has yet recovered from the shock is not stated, but Mr. Ross gave them a plain common-sense talk from the unpopular side of the question, impressing many truths which must have been a revelation to that kind of an audience. In speaking of rates he said to them:

"It is a mighty easy matter to sit down and in a academic way figure out the correct rates for a railroad. To do it in actual practice is another matter. It is easy matter enough to run a railroad—from the hurricane deck of a Chautauque platform, or from the floor of a legislative hall, with up to the point at the press gallery. But to do the stunt in actual practice here in Illinois amounts for the fact that so many of us who are actually in the game are blind headed, or if not that, our craniums are covered with the snow that may disappear, but which will never melt.

"Just now we are running our roads along a very narrow strip of territory, bounded on one side by a two-cent passenger rate, while on the other side there is a $20,000,000 bond issue to build waterways to reduce the freight rates.

And incidentally let me tell you that those same freight rates are made upon occasions to cover a multitude of commercial sins for which the railroad is made to suffer. You pay a good round price even these days for a poor round steak. And the freight rate gets its share of the blame.

"Yet the actual figures show that from the time that beef, that particular pound of the round, left the feed lot, was carried to the big packer, and then was returned to the local butcher, all the railroads collectively, over which that pound passed, did not receive more in the aggregate than one-half cent per pound. In a certain national famous exposition of the increase of price of beef from hoof to hook that important item is not unduly dwelt upon.

"An ordinary suit of clothes shipped in the ordinary way from the factory to the dealer within a couple of hundred miles of Chicago, for instance, will pay a cent or two cents in freight. Now suppose the 'blind thirsty railroad' should increase the freight rate on clothing so much as ten per cent, how should that increase the cost of a suit to the consumer of a suit of clothes made to retail in the ordinary way at $3.95?"

"Yet, as I said in the beginning, I feel somewhat modest about attempting to discuss these questions before a Chautauque audience. If you will stop and reflect upon the matter, you will see that in the eyes of the law at least, I am the least competent man in all this audience to pass upon questions such as these. I am not eligible for appointment upon the interstate commerce commission, while each one of you is, the law apparently having been framed in such a way as to deprive your Uncle Samuel of the services of any man actually engaged in railroad work."

The address is published in pamphlet form and is entitled to a wider circulation than it is likely to receive, because it corrects many popular errors as the result of ignorance. The notion prevails to large extent that but for the railroads and tariff the cost of living would be so reduced that everybody would soon grow rich, and this notion is encouraged by muck-rake writers and speakers. The railroads and tariff have made the country and are the largest contributors to prosperity.

CALAMITY HOWLERS

The Chicago Tribune, while recognizing the greatest newspaper in the west, has always been thuctured with free trade notions, and its editorial policy has been anything but loyal to the republican party.

While a staunch supporter of Taft during the prevention campaign the paper now takes issue with him on the tariff bill, and claims that he had the bill by the tail and was afraid to let go.

This will be considered a doubtful compliment to the man who has the well-earned reputation for courage of conviction, and who has yet to show the white feather in any emergency.

President Taft signed the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill for two or three well defined reasons. First, he realized that any measure so largely influenced by local conditions must be more or less of a compromise measure.

Second, the business of the country had been demoralized for a year by tariff discussion, and a speedy settlement of the question was demanded, and third, it was a republican measure adopted by the party which had honored him with office.

He believes, as does every man of well-balanced mind in public life, that the place to do effective work is within the ranks of his party, and when he said to the people of Illinois, "I am here not to defend Mr. Taft, but to support him," he had more than a tall-hill to run.

The tariff is in the hands of his friends. In the hands of the party which gave it birth and perpetuated it until "protection to American industries and labor" became the nation's watchword.

It is well for the people that the howls of democracy or walls of ignorance can not disturb it.

Whatever is done by way of revision will be done by the republican party after intelligent investigation, and long before President Taft's administration closes the people will be satisfied that he is doing fairly well with the bill.

In the meantime the business of the country is coming to the front by leaps and bounds. Calamity howlers have always been abroad in the land. If they happen to be in office they are usually dyspeptics—men whose vision is so clouded by imaginary ills and dire forebodings that they wouldn't recognize a blessing if it was labeled.

The papers which do the howling have discovered that prejudice and ignorance furnish a large constituency, but they will find it difficult to make people believe they are badly abused when prosperity is in full swing.

The sidewalk ordinance which compels the use of cement has given the city many miles of good walks, and the same material now being used exclusively for gutters is the first step in the direction of good street building. With the right kind of material and intelligent supervision the city should make rapid strides in the direction of good streets.

The reception of Cook in New York is a mixture of enthusiasm and doubt and the latter is not likely to be dispelled without more convincing evidence than has yet been offered. More important than the discovery of the pole, in the mind of the explorer, seemed to be the preparation of his book, which will soon be ready for distribution. The race for notoriety is still on.

The number of automobiles of all kinds in use in France is about 38,000. The state of New York has twice that number, and it is estimated that the American output for 1910 will exceed 200,000, and the industry is still in its infancy.

The Harriman lines will complete the 2,000 miles of new road and extensions, planned before the death of the great financier. They include a $30 million in Mexico and call for an outlay of $100,000,000. This opens up new territory and is a benefit to the entire country.

When a man or woman finds sickness coming on, such as indigestion, weak eyes, kidney trouble, etc., it is time some attention is given to the subject of food and drink.

In practically all such cases where coffee or tea is the drink, one can obtain relief by quitting the coffee or tea and taking Postum, for he leaves off a drink that is an active producer of disease and takes in its place a powerful, full liquid food that contains elements for rebuilding the nerve centres which have heretofore been torn down.

"There's a Reason"

Four thousand miles of new railroad were built last year and gross earnings show a healthy increase. Operating expenses have been reduced, and the roads are now in position to make up some of the losses sustained during the panic.

The Pullman company now employs 7,500 men and when the new shops are opened the number will be doubled. The company is two years behind on orders.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

INGRATITUDE TO PARENTS.

A correspondent tells a painful story of an aged mother who reared twelve children, all of whom are prosperous. The mother is now very poor, and none of the children will take her to his home.

Stories of this kind are too frequent. The writer knows a sad case of an old mother who was permitted by prosperous sons to go to the poor-house because their families were ashamed of the poor old lady.

Ingratitude to parents is a crying evil. We say the civilization of the Chinese is inferior, and we send missionaries to them, but the respect and veneration paid to parents by the Chinese put to shame our neglect and ingratitude.

The debt owed by a child to its parents is the most sacred of all human obligations.

Think how the father toils unceasingly and the mother sacrifices ungrudgingly that the child may be and grow and prosper! If in the family life there are short dinners to be eaten that the children may prosper, father and mother eat the scraps; if there are shabby clothes to be worn that the children may have good garments, father and mother wear them; if there are debts to be paid that the children may be educated, father and mother scrimp to pay them.

Who watches with unceasing devotion when the children are sick? Who rejoices in their success and comforts them in their defeats and sorrows? Who coils lifeblood for the children's sake? Who but father and mother?

If, then, can a child desert its mother in her old age?

If her form is stooped from the graceful figure of her daughters, if it is stooped in the service of her children, if her kindly old face is wrinkled, the care of the children put the wrinkles there, if her hands are knotted and worn, it is because she used them for the children's sake.

All the curses of the God who commanded "Honor thy father and thy mother" will surely rest upon the ungrateful ingrates who are too proud to take mother into their homes and care for her tenderly and lovingly.

Why, my friend, if you loaded your mother with the treasures of earth and heaped upon her all the honors of a queen you could not begin to pay her for what she has done for you, because the debt is immeasurable. But you should—

Begin to pay part of the debt—now! And when mother is dead, you will keenly feel that, whatever you may have done to pay her, you have not done enough.

Uncle Walt THE POET PHILOSOPHER

By WALT MASON (Copyright, 1909, by George Matthews Adams.)

John Bull looks forth upon the main, and heaves a sigh, as though in pain; he wipes away his tears and cries, in sorrow: "What my bonny eyes! There's fungus growing on my realm! I need a hunter at JOHN the helm! These once profitable British Isles are left behind a million miles; it was a blundered message trap; a Frenchman made the whole world blink by flying safely over the drink; a Dutchman built a big balloon, in which he'll journey to the moon; and now I'm told, had been my son, a Yankee's gone and found the Pole! Have Britons lost their steam and vim? Are we no longer in the swim? Are we content to lag behind, and trust in fate, and go it blind? Is this our England King dead, with candles at her feet and head? Has Gienah torn her robe and died, and have we brought to brace our pride?" A voice comes slithering over the land—a voice John Bull can understand; a female voice that's bright and gay, and in his ears it sounds to say: "Cheer up! The cards are with you yet—you always have the suffragette!"

Arrested in Bucket-Shop War. St. Louis, Sept. 23.—Four men charged in grand jury indictments with "keeping and maintaining bucket-shops" were arrested on bench warrants here, and a fifth, Frank J. Minor, made his appearance voluntarily before Judge Grimm to give bond.

The men arrested are George L. Harris and Charles P. Lightner of Harris & Lightner, brokers; Antonio J. Chenier, and William F. Ryan.

Fate Much as One Makes It. "Don't saddle your laziness and failure on fate. She is the kindest of road-deckers and allows herself to be won by anyone. You can claim her for your own and make her what you will. You can cherish her, dress her in the finest raiment and most gorgeous colors, you can twine the laurel wreaths around her brow, or you can drag her down to the mire of misery.

Cost Used as Fertilizer. Fifty thousand tons of soil are taken from London chimneys in a year. It is estimated to be worth $240,000 and is used as a fertilizer, half a ton to an acre.

One pound of Yankee Bread contains 70 parts of nitrogen as compared with 29 parts in a pound of potatoes and only 18 parts in one pound of meat.

Thus 5c worth of bread has far more nourishment than the same amount of meat.

Consider also that bread is only one-third water while meat is half water and potatoes fully two-thirds—so in other foods you often pay for mostly water.

Those who work hard and require the most food will find no better nourishment than a delicious loaf of Yankee Bread.

When I started out in life, I earnestly desired to be of use in this world. To be able in some way to add to the sum total of human happiness. I have no regrets to mention because I chose Dentistry as my field of labor.

Some things about my work are unpleasant, it is true, but there are very many pleasant things to compensate.

For instance:
There are two ways in which I can be of real help to people.

I can add to their personal attractiveness by beautifying their teeth.

I can add to every one's length of life by supplying anew nature's most valuable gift, namely: the teeth with which to eat and maintain our existence.

I suppose some of my work in the twenty years of my practice I would not be very proud of, at this time, but I am equally certain that I have put out a great deal of work which I shall always view with pride.

A normal man profits by his failures and improves next time.

NED WHITON HAD LEG BROKEN BY BRONCHO'S KICK

Returned Home on Crutches This Morning from a Trip to Mar.

Edward V. Whiton, secretary and treasurer of the Williamson Pen Co., who went to Marquette, North Dakota, a fortnight ago to protect his interests on a real estate claim, arrived home on crutches shortly after eight o'clock this morning, with his right leg in a plaster of paris cast. While at the sheep ranch which Sam Behlin and Clyde Sult have established in that region, Mr. Whiton was kicked by a vicious broncho and both bones of the leg were fractured four inches above the ankle. Word was sent here to the effect that he had suffered a severe sprain and he remained under a surgeon's care until it was possible for him to travel. Mr. Behlin accompanied him on the homeward journey as far as St. Paul. Except for the injury, which causes him considerable pain, he is in good health and the best of spirits.

"THE TORPEDO" IS LAUNCHED IN RIVER

Odd Craft Designed by William J. Reed and Built by Grover Horn Makes its Maiden Voyage.

At two o'clock this afternoon from the neck of Goose Island, "The Torpedo," a new variety of watercraft, was launched. The ceremony was altogether unostentatious, consisting merely of letting the boat slide from a wagon used for hauling scenery from the water. It is a sort of a cross between a launch and a catamaran, designed chiefly for high speed, and consists of two long hollow tubes on which a platform for passengers and the engine rest. Besides these the only paraphernalia concerned with the machine are the propeller and the rudder. It is thirty feet in length and about four feet wide. The two hollow, galvanized iron tubes are a foot in diameter, shaped almost to a point at each end, and contain air chambers to float the platform. A six-horsepower Gray marine motor is used to propel it. At the trial this afternoon held immediately after the launching, the boat floated as was expected, but the motor failed to work up to standard. Wm. J. Reed, proprietor of a pool room on West Milwaukee street, is the originator of the idea. W. W. Nash agreed to furnish the means for building the boat and to Grover Horn was given the job of constructing it.

Mrs. Jane Richards Passed Away at Daughter's Home This Morning at Four O'Clock.

[Special to the Gazette.]
Monticello, Sept. 23.—Mrs. Jane Richards, an aged resident of the village and one of the county's earliest settlers, died this morning at four o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lillian Milbrandt, where she has been making her home for the last few months. She was taken ill the last of the week and suffered a gradual decline until the end. The deceased was in her 78th year. Funeral services will be held at the M. E. church Friday afternoon at two o'clock.

Mrs. Cora Williamson of Oregon was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Edwards several days last week.

Mrs. Phila Hughtart arrived here this morning from Camp Douglas, being called here by the death of her mother, Mrs. Jane Richards. The other children are expected to arrive this evening.

G. C. Bonodet, who recently assumed the position of local agent for the Milwaukee road, moved his household effects here from Juba last week, the family occupying the now A. W. Stout residence on South Main street.

The house was only recently finished by Mr. Stout and while it is not the largest, it is easily one of the finest and most convenient homes in the village for its size.

Mrs. S. H. Luchsinger of New Glarus spent a few hours with Monticello friends Sunday. She was accompanied by Miss Luma Marty, who teaches school in the Myrthaler district.

MISSING CHRONOMETER WAS FOUND BUT NOT RETURNED

Lost Time-Piece Appeared But Once And That Was When a Reward Was in Prospect.
George Terry lost a watch some time ago and offered a reward of five dollars for its return. The finder brought the time-piece in a badly damaged condition to the holder of the reward, who thought it would be best until Mr. Terry could see the remains of his chronometer before handing it over. Mr. Terry now knows who found the watch but has been unable to secure it. The finder claims that he does not know where it went although it has been stated that he offered to sell it to several friends. The article itself is not worth a fortune, but Mr. Terry means to have it or at least find out the reason why it has not been returned to him.

MANY FROM JANESVILLE ARE ATTENDING ELKHORN FAIR

Although Smaller Than State Pumpkin Show, the Exhibition Draws Many From This City.

Despite the fact that a great number of Janesvillians attended the state fair at Milwaukee last week, an equally large number are leaving for the fair at Elkhorn this week. The special St. Paul train carried over 175 passengers from Janesville bound for the southern Wisconsin city. If the attendance from this city is any criterion, the seventeen special fair trains that were put on today carried a large crowd.

FOUR HABITUAL OFFENDERS WERE LET OFF VERY EASILY

Only One Paid His Fine While the Other Three Were Given Time to Re-mit.

Four offenders charged with drunkenness appeared before Judge Lange in municipal court this morning and considering their past records, were let off very easily. All four were sentenced to pay fines aggregating $3.10 with a five days' sojourn in the house as an alternative. Three of them gave the usual song and dance about not having enough to pay their fines, together with the stereotyped plea for a little more time to get the money. John Sulley came to bat with the whole amount; Andrew Johnson promised to get his assessment within twenty-four hours; Jack Tull, a white lighter, was allowed ten days' leeway; and Emmett Conroy of Clinton paid two dollars and promised to remit the remainder by Saturday.

ATTORNEY BELIEVED ROBBERS HAD TAKEN HIS COAT AND GRIP

H. L. Mahoney of Portage Notified Police of a Robbery That Never Happened.

Attorney H. L. Mahoney of Portage, formerly of this city, suffered an inexplicable lapse of memory yesterday and in consequence, the police were kept busy last night in a vain endeavor to locate an overcoat valued at $50 and a satchel containing valuable legal papers which Mr. Mahoney thought had been stolen.

It appears that on his arrival in Janesville Monday evening, he checked the coat and grip in the lunch-room of the North-Western station. He was busy all day Tuesday and yesterday afternoon when he looked for the check, he found that it had disappeared. The employee at the lunch counter stated, when asked if the articles were there, that a boy bearing the check, had taken the coat and satchel, saying that he had been asked to deliver them at the Hanley flats. There being no flats by that name in the city, the owner thought that he had lost the ticket and that the finder was his happy possessor of a valuable coat. He immediately notified the police who investigated the case.

After considerable inquiry it was ascertained last night that the robbery was simply the result of a sort of dual personality, something on the order of Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde order. It was stated that Mr. Mahoney had asked a friend to give the check to a messenger boy with orders to put the two articles in a private room which he had rented. This the boy did, but the owner had forgotten all about the room and his orders. The coat and satchel were delivered as directed but Mr. Mahoney remained over night at a hotel. He regained possession of the supposedly stolen articles this morning.

VARSITY BASEBALL NINE WAS BEATEN IN JAPAN

According to advices from Tokyo the University of Wisconsin baseball nine, which is making a tour of Japan, was defeated in its first game by the Kelo university nine. The score was 3 to 2, with Wisconsin making seven hits and Kelo hitting safely only three times. Kelo made only two errors, while the invading nine had four errors on its side.

ROBBERIES REPORTED BOTH IN MADISON AND ROCKFORD

$250 Worth of Silk Stolen in Forest City and a Team of Horses in Madison.

Two robberies which occurred last night and which will mean state's prison sentences for the offenders, if they are apprehended were reported to the Janesville police by the authorities in Madison and Rockford this morning, who asked that a watch be kept for any trace of the booty. The message from Rockford stated that the dry-goods store of Datta Bros. had been entered during the night and over $250 worth of silk goods had been taken. Chief Smauness of Madison reported that a team of horses had been stolen and also furnished a description of the missing steeds. Both animals were mares, one jet black about seven years old and the other a bright bay about eleven years old. One of the team had a white star on her forehead and both were bridled but otherwise unharnessed.

GOV. JOHNSON BURIED IN HIS HOME TOWN

Remains of Minnesota's Chief Executive Laid to Rest at St. Peter Beside His Mother.

St. Peter, Minn., Sept. 23.—The body of John A. Johnson, late governor of Minnesota, was today laid at rest beside that of his mother in the Johnson family lot in the St. Peter cemetery. As honorary escorts there came on the train which brought the remains from St. Paul, the state officers, the St. Paul lodge of Elks and the Knights of Pythias. Practically the entire population of St. Peter met the train at the station, for Gov. Johnson commanded the love and respect of all his fellow townsmen.

The active pallbearers selected from among the governor's closest personal friends. They were: Frank A. Day, who was his private secretary; F. H. Lynch, T. D. O'Brien, associate justice of the supreme court; E. T. Young, former attorney general; A. C. Weiss, manager of the Duluth Herald, and John C. Wine of Mankato.

The honorary pallbearers included the four living ex-governors of the state, L. F. Hubbard, John Lind, Samuel H. Van Sant and Knute Nelson, with Gov. A. C. Eberhart, C. M. Start, chief justice of the supreme court; Gov. John Burk of North Dakota and President Cyrus Northrup of the University of Minnesota.

Final funeral services were held in the Presbyterian church and were conducted by Rev. R. E. Clarke. The body of the dead governor was then interred in the Johnson family lot in the St. Peter cemetery, beside that of his mother.

Throughout the entire state there was a cessation of business and manufacturing from 3 to 3:05 o'clock this afternoon. Every wheel ceased turning and cars stopped. The bells of all churches, public and private institutions were tolled from 9:15 to 10 a. m. and from 3 to 3:05 p. m.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

THE world is full of shifted responsibilities.

Do you ever pick them up? For they belong to you.

The other day I saw a woman who was walking along a crowded thoroughfare, stop, pick up a banana skin and carry it carefully to the nearest waste barrel.

Several people looked at her askance. Two young girls said something to each other and uttered over it. But I felt at once admiration for her and shame that I had not been the one to shoulder that responsibility.

I believe that if anyone had fallen on that banana skin and been hurt that all of us who saw it and failed to pick it up would have shared the responsibility with the man who threw it there.

I believe that the responsibilities of every evil or trouble you can help remedy and do not, is on your head.

If your neighbor goes away and leaves a cat to starve and you neither feed that cat nor take measures to have it put out of its misery, the responsibility of its suffering becomes yours as well as his.

If you know of a saloon that is run in an illegal manner; if you know of an unsafe place in the street or sidewalk; if you know of a child or animal that isn't treated rightly; if you know of an unruly dog light district in your town, and knowing, do nothing to help change things, the moral responsibility becomes partially yours.

Quite frequently, of course, the people who pick up unclaimed responsibilities are called "quack" or "that terrible old woman" or "interfering." People suggest it would be better if everybody always minded his own business.

Would the world ever get any better if everybody always minded his own business?

I heard a good definition of altruism the other day—men who plant fruit trees for the next generation. We don't find fault with these men for minding someone else's business, but that's really what they are doing.

"What's everybody's business is nobody's business," they say, and it's sadly apt to be true of the needs of the world, the unclaimed responsibilities.

And every time anyone takes one of these on his shoulders, picks up a banana peel—actual or metaphorical—from the pathway, I think the world gets a little better toward heaven.

Do you ever give it one?

Ruth Cameron

ALL ABOUT THE HOUSE

Don't take down your screens. Better let them stand a little. Rough weather than to let in the pests that seem to come into being with every warm fall day.

A thin board tucked across the lower part of the screen door will keep it in good condition. Hags and dogs are apt to make their mark on that part of the screen. Paint with the same stain that is used for the screen.

MOTOR VEHICLES—For fall wear double belts of contrasting color are worn. One dainty shade serving as a lining. The belts are of chiffon and are a yard and a half square, finished with a satin ribbon hem two inches wide. Even the woman who never has owned an automobile and never expects to own one must have at least one veil, for an invitation to ride in the car of a friend may come at any moment, and she must be prepared to look comfortably for the sake of her friend as well as her own. "The veil that covers the face and the hair is the most important part of the outfit. Only on long hot roads are seen the ugly goggles and heavy face coverings.

FALL COLORS—The fashion set by Dame Nature is always in favor. The amethyst of the late autumn and the yellow of the golden rod are the favorite colors. Browns are seen in many soft and lovely materials. Soft, flannel shades are still the favorites. A little change is to be noted in the fashion of garments, long and slender shapes still are in highest favor. A great deal of embroidery in self and contrasting shades is seen on the imported dresses.

Cost of Building in United States. The total cost of the buildings erected in the principal cities of the United States in 1927 was $661,076,256, a net decrease of $17,631,683 from the figures of 1926, but an increase over those for any previous year. The unit cost of building, however, increased in the past year, for there were some 181,955 permits issued in 1927, as against 181,174 in 1926. In the cities showing a decrease in building New York takes the lead, with a falling off of $11,591,982, or 26.81 per cent.

Gophers Dig Under Railroad Tracks. Little gophers and moles are the cause of endless trouble for the Southern Pacific company, and continual expense, especially in the Willamette valley, where the land is rich and the gophers and moles like to live and dig. The gophers burrow holes under the track, carrying the earth out to the right of way and neighboring property. Thus undermined, the track gradually sinks. During January and February section crews continually work on the muddy spots in the track caused by the little underground animals.

COUNTERFEITERS ARE CAUGHT Whole Family Alleged to Be Makers of Bogus Money.

Thompson Falls, Mont., Sept. 23.—The sheriff's officers of Bonner county, Idaho, and Sanders county, Montana, raided a cabin near Trout Creek, Mont., and discovered a quantity of counterfeit money and a complete counterfeiting plant as a result of which J. B. Lee, president of the Bonnet Forest Mining Company, his wife and son, John, were arrested. Another son, Henry Lee, was arrested in Sandpoint, Id., several days ago for attempting to pass bad money and his arrest led to the unearthing of the counterfeiting plant five miles from Trout Creek, on the Big Trout creek. The wife, and son John were arrested at their home in Trout Creek, and Lee, Sr., was found in the counterfeiting cabin. He is said to have confessed to the officers.

FIRES BATTLE WITH THE REDS

Game Warden Attempts to Arrest Indians.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 23.—State Game Warden Pierce received from Deputy Jack Rowett of DeSmet a report of a battle near the Wisconsin line between officers and a band of poaching Wisconsin Indians who had been killing deer and beaver in Michigan as their forefathers did before the white men established game laws.

Deputy Rowett reports that he went to the Indians' camp and after finding venison and beaver hides undertook to make an arrest. The six Indians, aided by their five aquas, attacked the deputy and his five men with guns and axes. The officers had but two guns. Rowett finally shot one of the Indians dead who had been potting at him from behind a tree.

"The aquas were as bad as the men in the fight," reports Rowett, who adds that bloodshed is inevitable when he again attempts to arrest the red men.

LOUISIANA SUFFERS SEVERELY. FROM THE WEST INDIAN HURRICANE.

PROPERTY LOSS IS GREAT

Eight People Were Drowned in Mississippi, But Effects of Storm in That State Are Less Than First Reported.

New Orleans, Sept. 23.—Fifty-five lives are known to have been lost and 55 others are reported to have perished in the tropical hurricane which, starting last Sunday, continued throughout Monday and Monday night. The greatest loss of life occurred in Lower Terrebonne parish. It is in this parish where 69 are said to be dead, but this cannot be verified.

The property loss in far heavier than was first believed and instead of running into the hundreds of thousands will extend well into the millions by the time the final details are tallied.

Miles of territory have been laid waste and crops have been practically ruined.

New Orleans is still sadly crippled in the way of railroad facilities and telephone and telegraph communication with the outside world.

With 100 refugees from Grand Isle, a small island on the coast of Louisiana, about 60 miles south of New Orleans, the mail steamer Grand Isle brought the first news from Grand Isle and Cheniere Caminada, another island.

Not a life was lost on either island, but every head of live stock on both were swept into the gulf. The shrill cries of the frightened animals added to the terror of the panic-stricken inhabitants.

Fields and Groves Laid Flat.

Fields of cane were laid flat and several orange groves destroyed, the trees being broken off or uprooted, and those which were left standing were stripped of all the fruit and foliage. Property damage on these islands alone run into the thousands.

In 1825 both islands were swept by one of the worst storms in the history of the gulf and 1,500 lives lost on Cheniere Caminada.

Coast Is Wiped Clean.

Jacksonville, Miss., Sept. 23.—The damage done by the hurricane in Mississippi was greatly exaggerated. There was comparatively small timber destruction, the yellow pine belt escaping almost entirely.

The crop damage, especially to cotton, was much smaller than indicated by early reports. The Mississippi Coast Traction Company's road of 18 miles, which lost $1,000,000, is almost a complete wreck. It runs between Long Beach and Biloxi.

TEN LIVES LOST IN CYCLONE.

Two Thousand People in Cuban Province Are Shelterless.

Washington, Sept. 23.—More than ten lives were lost and property worth over $2,000,000 was destroyed in the cyclone which recently swept over the province of Pinar del Rio, Cuba, Communication between Havana and the storm area in the western part of the province was cut off except at two or three points and reports of damages are just reaching Havana. More than 2,000 people are without shelter or supplies, several hundred houses and huts and tobacco barns, several thousand acres of tobacco and many small vessels along the coast were destroyed. Mr. Dearing, the American charge at Havana, in his report to the state department, says that foreign aid to the sufferers, however, is not needed, as the Cuban public is responding with generous subscriptions.

Famous "Midget" Is Dead.

Boston, Sept. 23.—Rodina Nutt, last male survivor of the late P. T. Barnum's famous midget troupe, and who, as a member of that dwarf combination, became known all over this country and in England, died at his home in Dorchester at the age of 69 years. Since retiring 19 years ago, "Midget" Nutt, as he was known, had conducted a successful real estate business. He was a brother of "Commodore" Nutt, with whom he traveled under the auspices of Barnum, and who died in 1861.

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can

PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes: "As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length!"

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been seriously misunderstood and altogether mis-treated. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very seat in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention it needs to be expected to produce beautiful hair.

It would do so easily and quickly if it were treated with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment, which in turn causes the scalp to become dry and brittle, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and the surface of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

PORTER PREVENTED
A BAD RUNAWAYRoy Williams, Employed at the Hotel
Myers, Stopped Frightened Horse
Just in Time.

Roy Williams, porter at the Hotel

Myers, this morning prevented what had not been for his courage and presence of mind, might have been a bad runaway. He was working near the Milwaukee street entrance of the hotel about eight o'clock when a big black horse drawing J. M. Hostwick's delivery wagon became frightened and started to run up the hill. The horses to which the wagon was attached had become unmanageable and the driver had dropped to the ground which made it impossible for the driver to control the horse. Williams, realizing the dangerous situation, ran forward and grasped the horse by the bridle, finally bringing him to a stop after the terrified animal had dragged him almost to Bluff street. The rig was not damaged and Williams, very fortunately, managed to escape injury from the horse's hoofs.

"He laughed rather harshly, for he was more annoyed than his consideration for Mr. Pinney made him care to show. He had looked forward to giving Margaret the ruby, mounted just as she wanted it; and the ruby was gone, and he did not know where he was to find another, except the one that was now in Pinney's hands, but really belonged to poor Baraka, who could certainly not sell it at present. A much larger sum of money was gone, too, than any flannel could lose with equanimity by such a peculiarly disagreeable mishap as being robbed. There were several reasons why Logothetti was not pleased.

"I am deeply humiliated," said the worthy old jeweler, "I have not only been tricked and plundered, but I have been the means of sending innocent people to prison."

"You had better be the means of getting them out again as soon as possible," said Logothetti. "And you must also make an effort to trace those young men who stole the ruby."

"I must certainly," replied the jeweler, "and if it is not found we will make it good to you, sir, whatever price you set upon it. I am deeply humiliated, but nobody shall say that Pinney & Son do not make good any loss their customers sustain through them."

"Don't worry about that, Mr. Pinney," said Logothetti, who saw how much distressed the old jeweler really was.

So they went out and hailed a hansom and drove away.

It would be tiresome to give a detailed account of what they did. Suffice it to say that the prisoners were not at large; Mr. Pinney restored the ruby to Baraka, and all her other belongings were given back to her, even including the smart gray suit of men's clothes in which she had been arrested; and her luggage and other things which the manager of the hotel where she had been stopping had handed over to the police were all returned; and when Sipro appeared at the hotel to pay the small bill that had been left owing, he held his head as high as an oriental can when he has got the better of any one, and that, in pretty high indeed. Furthermore, Mr. Pinney insisted on giving Logothetti a formal document by which Messrs. Pinney & Son bound themselves to make good to him, his heirs, or assigns, the loss of a ruby, approximately of a certain weight and quality, which he had lost through their carelessness.

On the day following Baraka's liberation, Lady Maud received Margaret's pressing message begging her to go to Daymouth. The message reached her before noon, about the time when Margaret and her companions had come back from their morning walk, and after hesitating for half an hour, she telegraphed that she would come with pleasure, and would start at once which meant that evening.

She had just read the official account of the ruby case in its new aspect, and she did not believe a word of the story. To her mind it was quite clear that Logothetti was still infatuated with the girl, that he had come to London as fast as he could, and that he had deliberately sworn that the ruby was not his, but another one, in order to get her out of trouble. If it was not his it had not been stolen from Pinney's, and the whole case fell through at once. If she was declared innocent the stone must be given back to her; he would take it from her as soon as they were alone and return it to his own pocket; and being an oriental, he would probably beat her for robbing him, but would not let her out of his sight again till he was tired of her. Lady Maud had heard from her late husband how all Turks believed that women had no souls and should be kept under lock and key, and well fed, and soundly beaten now and then for the good of their souls.

pers. "This view was exaggerated, but Lady Maud was in a humor to recall it and accept it without criticism, and she made up her mind that before leaving town to join Margaret she would make sure of the facts. No friend of hers should marry a man capable of such outrageous deeds.

So she went to Logothetti's lodgings and asked to see him, as regardless of what any one should think of her, if she were recognized, as she had been in the old days when she used to go to Van Torp's chambers in the Temple in the evening.

She was told that Logothetti was out of town. Where? The servant did not know that. The lady could see the secretary, who might, perhaps, tell her. He received every one who had business with Mons. Logothetti.

She went up one flight and was admitted to a very airy sitting room, amply furnished.

The Swiss secretary rose ponderously to receive her, and as she did not sit down he remained standing. His vast face was fringed with a beard of no particular color, and his eyes were fixed and blue in his head, like turquoise set in pale gold leather.

"I am Countess Leven," she said, "and I have known Mons. Logothetti some time. Will you kindly tell me where he is?"

"I do not know, madam," was the answer.

"He is not in London?"

"At present I do not know, madam."

"Has he left no address? Do you not forward his letters to him?"

"No, madam. I do not forward his letters to him."

"Then I suppose he is on his yacht," suggested Lady Maud.

"Madam, I do not know whether he is on his yacht."

"You don't seem to know anything!"

"Pardon me, madam, I think I know my business. That is all I know."

Lady Maud held her beautiful head a little higher and her lids dropped slightly as she looked down at him, for he was shorter than she. But the huge leather face was perfectly impassive, and the still, turquoise eyes surveyed her without winking. She had never seen such stolidity in a human being.

There was clearly nothing to be done, and she thought the secretary distinctly rude; but as that was no reason why she should be, she bade him good-morning civilly and turned to go. Somewhat to her surprise, he followed her quickly across the room, opened the door for her and went on into the little hall to let her out. There was a small table there, on which lay some of Logothetti's hats, and several pairs of gloves were laid out neatly before them. There was one pair of a light gray, very much smaller than all the rest, so small, indeed, that they might have fitted a boy of seven, except that they looked too narrow for any boy. They were men's gloves as to length and buttons, but only a child could have worn them.

Lady Maud saw them instantly, and remembered Baraka's disguise; and as she passed the big umbrella jar to go out, she saw that with two of Logothetti's sticks there was a third, fully four inches shorter! Just a plain crook-handled stick with a silver ring. That was enough. Baraka had certainly been in the lodgings and had probably left in them everything that belonged to her disguise. The fact that the gloves and the stick were in the hall looked very much as if she had come in dressed as a man and had left them there when she had gone away in woman's attire. That she was with Logothetti, most probably on his yacht, Lady Maud had not the least doubt, as she went down the stairs.

The Swiss secretary stood at the open door on the landing till she was out of sight below, and then went in again, and returned to work over a heap of business papers and letters. When he had worked half an hour, he leaned back in his leather chair to rest, and stared fixedly at the bookcase. Presently he spoke aloud in English, as if Lady Maud were still in the room, in the same dull, matter-of-fact tone, but more forcibly as to expression.

"It is perfectly true, though you do not believe me, madam. I do not know anything. How the dickens should I know where they are, madam? But I know my business. That is all."

Dickens Family Lost Big Fortune.

Dickens was one of the most successful financially of all authors. His was no case of genius starving in a garret. "Pickwick" placed him above want at 25, and for a period of 30 years following its publication in 1837 he received a princely income from his writings. His American tour brought him $50,000. His estate at his death in 1870 was estimated at $100,000. That his grandchildren should now be in need of the trifling pension bestowed on them is a painful illustration of the vicissitudes of family fortune.

PEARY REACHES HOME TODAY

EXPLORER WILL SPEND SEVERAL DAYS AT EAGLE ISLAND.

PREPARES REPORT THERE

Dr. Cook at New York Awaits Arrival of Henry Whitney to Prove His Assertion That He Discovered the Pole.

Portland, Me., Sept. 23.—A most enthusiastic welcome awaits Commander Robert E. Peary when he, accompanied by his family, reaches here late today, en route from Sydney to his home at Eagle Island, Maine.

Commander Peary expects to spend a few days at Eagle Island, making up his reports and preparing a statement on the question, "Has Cook been at the pole?" He does not think it will be long before the statement is made public. Commander Peary and his party are traveling from Sydney, N. S., in a special car attached to the regular express.

Are Waiting for Whitney. New York, Sept. 23.—Henry Whitney, the big game hunter, to whom Dr. Frederick A. Cook looks to prove his assertion that he discovered the north pole, is believed to be now on his way from Hudson bay or Baffin's bay to a telegraphic point in either Labrador or Newfoundland. With his return to civilization Dr. Cook expects complete confirmation of his story that he told Whitney all about his trip to the pole.

Further testimony to corroborate Dr. Cook's claims is expected when Commander Peary's ship, the Roosevelt, reaches this city from Nova Scotia. Dr. Cook declares that on the Roosevelt there was more than one person who knew that he had been to the pole. Pritchard, the cabin boy, has already admitted that he heard Dr. Cook tell Harry Whitney of finding the pole, and Dr. Cook intimates that Pritchard did not have the information to himself on the Roosevelt.

No Rest for Cook. Piled in the sitting room of his suite at the Waldorf-Astoria are nearly 1,000 letters and telegrams from all parts of the world, to many of which he must give immediate answers.

Dr. Cook will stay in his rooms practically all the time until his next public appearance, which will be at the banquet tendered by the Arctic club tonight. Many of the letters awaiting answer are from theatrical managers, commercial bodies and civic organizations which are anxious to have the explorer lecture or attend public functions in various cities.

Dr. Cook's first labor, however, will be the preparation of the record of his discovery, upon which he depends to convince the scientific world, and through them the world at large, that his claims are well founded. He has promised that this record shall be made public as soon as it is filed first with the University of Copenhagen and probably without waiting for the verdict of that body.

SUFFRAGETTES PUT TO WORK English Judge Tries to Check Rioting Through Severe Sentences.

London, Sept. 23.—Ordinary imprisonment having failed to check rioting on the part of the suffragettes, a magistrate at Birmingham sentenced Mary Leigh and Charlotte Marsh, two of the ringleaders in the outbreak at the meeting in Birmingham the night of September 17, when Premier Asquith delivered an address upon the budget, to two and three months at hard labor, respectively. Another woman was given one month at hard labor, and others various terms of simple imprisonment. When the sentences were announced a number of suffragettes in court picked up whatever they could lay their hands on in the form of missiles and broke the windows of the court room.

Norwegian Pioneer in Reunion. Stoughton, Wis., Sept. 23.—Norwegians and the members of their families to the number of several hundred are assembled in Stoughton today taking part in the biennial meeting of the Norwegian Pioneer association of America. C. J. Meland of this city is president, J. J. Hopperstad of Decorah, Ia., is secretary and I. S. Kolbel of Cottonwood, Minn., is treasurer. The association was organized in Madison, Wis., in 1896, for social purposes and also to gather and preserve historical data of the early pioneers. Members must be of Norwegian blood or extraction, and have resided in America 40 years or more.

No Confirmation of Jewish Massacre. Vienna, Sept. 23.—Various inquiries have reached Vienna with reference to a reported massacre of Jews at Kiev, but no confirmation of such a report is to be obtained here. Nothing is known of anti-Jewish riots in that part of Russia.

Gored to Death by Bull. Sterling, Ill., Sept. 23.—Thomas Davis, a farmer of Salem township, Carroll county, was gored to death by a vicious bull and then his body partly consumed by hogs before his loss had been discovered. He was horribly disfigured.

Canals on Mars Are Disappearing. Boston, Sept. 23.—A telegram received today by John Ritchie, Jr., from Prof. Percival Lowell at his observatory at Flagstaff, Arizona, states that recent observations show that the antarctic canals of Mars are disappearing.

MOORS LEAVE MANY DEAD ON THE FIELD Spanish Forces Successful Against Tribesmen—War Fever Is at High Pitch.

Madrid, Sept. 23.—According to the last dispatch received here from Morocco the Spanish forces were most successful in turning Mount Guruga and surrounding the ferocious Beni-Licar tribesmen. All reports agree that the Moors showed faintest courage, but they were not with a gallant display of Spanish valor. The war fever is at a high pitch and the government is publishing broadcast accounts of many thrilling and gallant episodes of the fighting.

Near Taxila four battalions of Spanish troops were deployed over a front six miles long. They were charged suddenly by 200 Arab horsemen. Gen. Tovar, perceiving that the enemy threatened to break the line, sent out a strong detachment of Chasseurs and cavalrymen to check them. The two parties met with a terrific shock. At first the Moors broke, but they returned to the attack several times before they were finally routed, leaving many dead on the field. The Spanish infantry then feigned a retreat and the Moors, reinforced, swept down upon them. The Spanish line then advanced and fired repeated volleys point blank into the enemy, putting them to flight. The dispatches report that the Moors left 100 dead on the field.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MOORS LEAVE MANY DEAD ON THE FIELD Spanish Forces Successful Against Tribesmen—War Fever Is at High Pitch.

Madrid, Sept. 23.—According to the last dispatch received here from Morocco the Spanish forces were most successful in turning Mount Guruga and surrounding the ferocious Beni-Licar tribesmen. All reports agree that the Moors showed faintest courage, but they were not with a gallant display of Spanish valor. The war fever is at a high pitch and the government is publishing broadcast accounts of many thrilling and gallant episodes of the fighting.

Near Taxila four battalions of Spanish troops were deployed over a front six miles long. They were charged suddenly by 200 Arab horsemen. Gen. Tovar, perceiving that the enemy threatened to break the line, sent out a strong detachment of Chasseurs and cavalrymen to check them. The two parties met with a terrific shock. At first the Moors broke, but they returned to the attack several times before they were finally routed, leaving many dead on the field. The Spanish infantry then feigned a retreat and the Moors, reinforced, swept down upon them. The Spanish line then advanced and fired repeated volleys point blank into the enemy, putting them to flight. The dispatches report that the Moors left 100 dead on the field.
